Extract:

But it's too late.

I spring up and grab her shoulder, pulling her up and pointing up the slope to where the wall of fog is expanding until the whole of the top of the mountain seems to be consumed.

"They've triggered an avalanche," I gasp. "We need to get out of here."

Description:

Tom thought going to a luxury ski resort was the holiday he and his mum needed. But he didn't expect kidnapers to take over their chalet - looking for the dangerous technology her boss has created - or for an avalanche to trap them even further. Can Tom figure a way out, before it's too late?

Editor Says:

"Completely impossible to put down! Such a great thriller for a dark, chilly night..."

Simon Fox

Simon Fox lives in Sussex with his extraordinarily patient wife and two teenage children who never tidy their rooms but would take on the world for each other. Running out of Time is his first novel after twenty years trapped in the dungeon of accountancy. He is determined to never go back.
